Public lecture: Japan’s Senior Life Design in the Positive Welfare Era
Date: March 24, 2016
Time: 11:30 a.m. – 12:30 p.m.
Place: UTSA Main Campus, Main Building (MB) 1.102

The East Asia Institute will host the visit of Prof. Yoko Hosoe who will give a lecture entitled “Japan’s Senior Life Design in the Welfare Era” from 11:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. on March 24, 2012 in MB 1.102.

Japan has faced challenges of economic globalization at a macro level. Consequently, the conditions and circumstances for senior life design needs to be re-evaluated due to the severe changes faced in the Japanese society.

This lecture will explore senior life design in the positive welfare era in Japan and highlight the changes in Japanese societies both at the macro and micro level. Hosoe will also examine how the senior life design has changed over time and recommend ideal approaches to this new life design.

Hosoe is a professor at Tokyo’s Jissen Women’s University. Her primary area of research is the support for the elderly in family and society of South Asia. Her recent academic achievements include the co-authored publications of, The Senior Opens Our Future (2014), New Theory of Family Relations (2014), and Theory of Family Life Support- Theory and Practice (2014). She has also published numerous papers related to aspects of family relations and home economics.
