Keeping It Real-Time with Announcements!
Thursday, September 12th

An online course can seem detached from students, especially if all the content is curated in advance and if the course runs asynchronously. How can we keep the course engaging to students, such that they feel the instructor’s and each other’s presence? This session will discuss strategies that incorporate a learning management system’s announcements.

Online Discussion Board and Student Engagement:
Getting the Students to SpeakWrite
Friday, October 4th

Did you ever wonder how to get students engaged, keep students engaged, and grade their engagement in an online course? I bet you the discussion board didn’t cross your mind. This coffee break session provides an opportunity to learn a technique for how to use online discussion boards to engage students and keep them engaged.

Journey from In-Class to Online: Lessons Learned, Surprises, and Advantages
Thursday, November 14th

Join me in this session as I show you my journey from taking a face-to-face course and turn it into a fully online course. I will share with you all of the lessons I’ve learned, some surprises and even some of the advantages to creating and teaching an online course.
