

UTSA Sports Trivia

Q: If UTSA was in the Big XII Conference, where would it rank in terms of enrollment?

A: Third. Texas, Texas A&M, and then UTSA. Larger than Oklahoma, Oklahoma State, Colorado, Kansas, Kansas State, Iowa State, Texas Tech, Nebraska, Baylor and Missouri.

Q: In the mid-1960s, a graduate of San Antonio Fox Tech High School running for the University of Texas in Austin became the first Texan to break the four-minute mile. What was his name?

A: Dr. Ricardo Romo, President, University of Texas at San Antonio.

Q: UTSA men's head basketball coach Brooks Thompson was a first round draft choice in the 1994 NBA draft and went to the 1995 NBA Finals. Name the NBA franchise that drafted him and went to the 1995 Finals.

A: Orlando Magic.

Q: UTSA baseball coach Sherman Corbett recently was named Southland Conference Coach of the Year after the Roadrunners won the regular season championship. Coach Corbett pitched for four years in the major leagues. Where did he play in the major leagues?

A: California Angels, 1988-91.

Q: UTSA senior and Olympic hopeful RYANNE DUPREE recently was named All American in the heptathlon for the third time in her career. How many events do heptathlon athletes compete in at a two-day meet?

A: Seven.

Q: UTSA Athletic Director Lynn Hickey took two teams to the NCAA Women's Basketball Sweet 16. Name one of the two Big XII schools where she was the women's head basketball coach.

A: Kansas State and Texas A&M.

Q: Name the current member of the San Antonio Spurs who completed his college education at UTSA.

A: Bruce Bowen.

Q: Four of the past five years, the UTSA softball team has led the nation in what offensive category?

A: Home runs.

Q: Over the past 11 years, UTSA has hosted nine NCAA championship events in the Alamodome and AT&T Center. What national championship will UTSA host in the Alamodome during 2008?

A: NCAA Men's Basketball Final Four

Q: He is the all-time leading scorer for UTSA men's basketball and currently plays for the New Orleans Hornets. Who is he?

A: Devin Brown