Serving in the armed forces of the United States of America is an honor. It is also an experience that adds to one's character. Sometimes, after separation or discharge, it becomes clear that serving in the military changes who we are. This can affect how we experience other types of life events.

This group is intended to offer a safe and comfortable environment in which to share military perspectives on life, work, education, war policy, relationships, almost anything. Group is open to active duty, guard/ reserve, former military, retired military, current or former spouses of military members and family of current or former military members. Group is open to students, faculty and staff of UTSA!

Participants can come and go as they wish.
