As an award-winning international performing artist, Reanae McNeal explores the complexities of simultaneous oppression of women as it relates to domestic violence in her lecture, “The Faces of Violence.” Through conveying research, stories, poetry, and high-spirited singing, Reanae delves into the complexities of domestic violence on both a national and international level. In this fashion, she leaves the audience with powerful information while encouraging them to know that we all have the power to make a difference.