The Honorable Louie Gohmert
United States House of Representatives, District 1
2243 Rayburn House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515

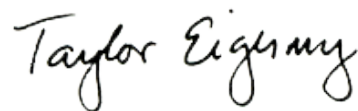

Dear Representative Gohmert:

Thank you for all you do for The University of Texas at San Antonio (UTSA). I write encouraging you to take Congressional action in response to the recent announcement to end the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) program within six months. The contributions of these students should remain here in the United States. UTSA's DACA students enrich our university and our community. They know of no other home than the United States, and they work hard to get their education. They are eager to become productive members of society, contributing to our economic well-being as scientists, doctors, engineers and teachers.

As a Hispanic-Serving Institution, UTSA proudly embraces diversity and inclusion. DACA students help build a campus culture where everyone is welcome and everyone belongs. Perhaps most importantly, they continue to persist against the odds and succeed, demonstrating the core American values of educational advancement, determination and hard work.

While UTSA will always uphold the law, I encourage Congress to mitigate the disruption that DACA termination will have on these young people's lives through prompt passage of legislation to codify DACA protections. I urge you to work with your Congressional colleagues to seek an immediate solution so these students can continue their education at UTSA. One such effort is the BRIDGE Act, which would provide temporary relief from deportation, thereby offering DACA students some security while Congress debates legislation addressing a permanent resolution.

Sincerely,

Taylor Eighmy, Ph.D.
President

The Honorable Pete Olson
United States House of Representatives, District 22
2133 Rayburn House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515

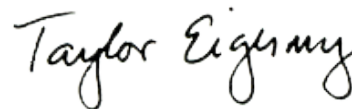

Dear Representative Olson:

Thank you for all you do for The University of Texas at San Antonio (UTSA). I write encouraging you to take Congressional action in response to the recent announcement to end the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) program within six months. The contributions of these students should remain here in the United States. UTSA's DACA students enrich our university and our community. They know of no other home than the United States, and they work hard to get their education. They are eager to become productive members of society, contributing to our economic well-being as scientists, doctors, engineers and teachers.

As a Hispanic-Serving Institution, UTSA proudly embraces diversity and inclusion. DACA students help build a campus culture where everyone is welcome and everyone belongs. Perhaps most importantly, they continue to persist against the odds and succeed, demonstrating the core American values of educational advancement, determination and hard work.

While UTSA will always uphold the law, I encourage Congress to mitigate the disruption that DACA termination will have on these young people's lives through prompt passage of legislation to codify DACA protections. I urge you to work with your Congressional colleagues to seek an immediate solution so these students can continue their education at UTSA. One such effort is the BRIDGE Act, which would provide temporary relief from deportation, thereby offering DACA students some security while Congress debates legislation addressing a permanent resolution.

Sincerely,

Taylor Eighmy, Ph.D.
